TTIAA periodically sends e-mail notices to members about upcoming events and activities.

Have you reviewed your TIAA membership information recently to be sure your e-mail address is current to receive these notices?

You can check this online from the TIAA Web site under the Members heading and go to Update Directory Information or call TIAA, 972-995-8393, to update your information.

How to Access TI History Web Site

To access the award-winning TI 75th anniversary History of Innovation Web site, go to the TI Alumni Association Web site, www.tialumni.org, and click on View TI History of Innovation. You can click on TI Interactive Timeline or, for a text version of key TI events, click on TI Low Bandwidth Timeline.

We apologize to readers who had difficulty accessing the online virtual museum after reading about it in our July issue.

Celebrate Halloween at TI Retiree Big Event

Scare up some new memories with old friends at Southfork Ranch

By Ed Hassler

Don't expect to see J. R. Ewing when you visit Southfork Ranch on Tuesday, Oct. 31, for the annual TI Retiree Big Event.

At Southfork — setting for the legendary television series Dallas — you'll be more likely to encounter the presence of Vlad Tepes' Dracula than J. R., the Dallas character.

In the spirit of Halloween, most volunteers will dress in costumes instead of wearing special T-shirts, the volunteer uniform of the day at recent Big Events. Jack-o'-lanterns will be table decorations.

The doors will open at 9 a.m., with the program finishing just after 2 p.m. In between, if you have a question or comment, look for a volunteer in costume.

The event site and the costumed volunteers will give the annual retiree luncheon a change of pace. We might never do something this different again, so you have to come and see what your friends wear as a costume when given the proper motivation.

Shaunna Sowell, TI vice president of Worldwide Facilities, will be the featured speaker. Shaunna was the construction manager of the RFAB semiconductor chip factory in Richardson, the latest major addition to TI production facilities, until her promotion to her present position.

In addition to the luncheon, program, Big Event activities will include the opportunity for retirees to get flu and pneumonia immunizations and various medical tests.

Please remember to tell a vendor you choose to use that you saw him or her at the TI Retiree Big Event. Also, we will have vendor displays pertinent to the needs of retirees.

Southfork Ranch is in Collin County at 3700 Hogge Rd., in Parker. From Dallas, take N. Central Expressway (US Highway

75) to Exit 30, Parker Road. Drive east on Parker Road for approximately 5.5 miles (to the intersection of Hogge Road or Murphy Road) and turn right. Southfork entrance No. 1 will be on your left.

Turn into the entrance and follow the signs to parking. Handicapped parking will be on the paved area, and the general parking will be on the unpaved area. Buses will carry you to the south door of the convention facility.

For those who don't want to drive to Southfork, we will have buses coming from the Texins Activity Centers at the Expressway and Spring Creek sites and, for South Dallas retirees, from the Women's Museum at Fair Park. You must sign up for this bus service, offered at a nominal cost. Please indicate your need for bus service on the registration form.

Registration forms will be available on the TIAA Web site, www.tialumni.org, and from the TIAA office, 972-995-8393.

At Southfork, look and see if you can find the persona of Vlad Tepes' Dracula. He would appreciate talking to you.

I hope to see you at the Big Event. Please come and meet with your TI friends and have a great time.

TIAA Golf Tournament Raises $22,250 for The Senior Source

By Max Post

The 7th Annual TIAA Charity Golf Tournament raised $22,250 for The Senior Source, an organization dedicated to improving the quality of life for senior citizens in North Texas.

Some 65 golfers turned out Sept. 18 to enjoy the best golf weather in the tournament's history — light breezes, clear skies and cool temperatures. For the first time, the tournament site was the Waterview Golf Club in Rowlett, Texas — a challenging course with beautiful, well-kept

TIAA Presidency Keeps McMahan Involved With TI

By Dot Adler

One of Lewis McMahan's goals when he made his decision to retire was to stay involved with TI.

"The TI Alumni Association seemed like the perfect way to keep up with what was going on in the company and stay in touch with my TI friends," he said.

Lewis asked Ed Hassler, TIAA immediate past president, how to become a member. Ed said, "Easy. Just send in $100 for a Lifetime TIAA membership and get a free TI 75th anniversary history book."

So Lewis did. In May, he was elected TIAA president.

A native Dallasite, Lewis attended Highland Park High School and graduated from Southern Methodist University in 1969 with a bachelor's degree in civil engineering.

He worked more than 36 years at TI in the Facilities and Environmental, Safety and Health (ESH) organizations. During the 1970s, he had expatriate assignments in Taipei, Taiwan and Nice, France. He was vice president and manager of Worldwide Facilities and ESH from 1998 through 2005.

On his own time, Lewis was a volunteer community leader. His responsibilities included board positions on the Richardson Chamber of Commerce, North Texas Commission, United Way of Metropolitan Dallas, SMU Alumni Board, SMU Engineering Advisory Board, Quality Texas Foundation and the Dallas Museum of Art.

Lewis said he really got involved with TIAA when he started work on the history book and had the idea of having the SMU Library take over the TI Archives. Lewis spearheaded the negotiations with SMU, and now the history project team members are tackling the archives project – digging through numerous boxes of TI archival files and deciding what should be preserved at SMU.

Ed Hassler and several TIAA members volunteered to work on the allocation committees of the United Way, where Lewis has volunteered for almost 15 years. "I was really impressed with the TIAA organization and involvement in the community," Lewis said.

The TIAA nominations committee, headed by founding TIAA president Max Post, recruited Lewis to be TIAA president. "Max invited me to breakfast and offered me the position," Lewis said. "It was an easy sell, especially since Max kind of understated the time commitment. However, I have never regretted the decision and have really enjoyed working with all the wonderful volunteers and Doris Mott (TIAA administrator). What a great and dedicated team!"

Lewis held a session with the TIAA Executive Committee in July and talked about TIAA accomplishments and programs that were going well or could be improved. They also discussed the "careabouts" of TIAA members and sponsor, Texas Instruments.

"This session resulted in some prioritizations and some new ideas," Lewis said. "We will be looking at several new ideas and will hopefully describe some of them at the Big Event. Oct. 31."

One of Lewis's desires is to broaden the communication with more TIers outside of Dallas. "We have many TIers around the world who are interested in TI and their communities and have formed their own retiree groups," Lewis said. "I would like for TIAA to help these groups communicate better with others around the world. We have the TIAA Web page and quarterly newsletter that can be used by all."

While serving as TIAA president, Lewis continues to volunteer in the community with the United Way, SMU Engineering School, The Women's Museum and the architectural review committee for his homeowners association.

Lewis has been married for 28 years to ex-TIer Valerie Townsend. They have two sons, Michael, 26, and David, 24.

Michael is married to Amy Neal and is in his last year of SMU Law School. David is a corporate pilot flying a Lear Jet for a small oil company in Amarillo.

Valerie and Lewis just added a couple of bedrooms to the cabin on their 400-acre country place near Kaufman. Meanwhile, Lewis is taking up golf again after giving it up for 30 years. "I'm trying to break 100," he says.

Let TI Know Your Current Address

Changing your home address can impact your TI medical and dental plans, since different plans are available in different U.S. regions. Moving to another location could require you to select a plan that is offered in your new area.

If you move, you must contact the TI Benefits Center within 30 days of your move. Additionally, if you have a temporary address during part of the year, don't forget to notify the U.S. Postal Service so that correspondence from TI and the TI Benefits Center is forwarded to you.

You can keep your home address current in either of the following ways:

Online on the Your Benefits Resources (YBR) Web site: Go to www.tialumni.org and, under Benefits, click on Hewitt YBR and log in. From the main page of YBR, select Your Profile, which is located in the Topics box, then click the Mailing Addresses tab. Click the link next to the permanent address labeled "Change" to update your permanent address.

Phoning the TI Benefits Center: Update your information by calling the TI Benefits Center (available Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Central time):

- Call TI SmartLink at 800-890-2600.
- Enter or say your Social Security number; then, at the main menu, say "TI Benefits Center."
- You will be asked to enter your Hewitt password. If you don't have one, press the star key, then zero. You will be transferred to a representative who will help you set up a password for the TI Benefits Center and YBR. Be prepared to provide the representative with your birth date and your previous zip code (the zip code currently in the YBR system).

Ex-TI Network Links Retirees with Second Careers

New organization provides personal, professional connections

Yes, there is life after TI, and it often includes a second career.

Welcome to the Ex-TI Network, created because several retired or former TIers wanted to get together with other ex-TIers who have found second careers and life since leaving TI.

The Ex-TI Network originated with Joan Nichols, Patti Waterbury, J. Francisco Escobar, Mike Bartlett and David Van Winkle.

The group started with a few who had worked together on various TI projects. They included executives and managers from every former business group — engineering, marketing, information technology, human resources, etc. — who are now successful chief executive officers of other companies, consultants and entrepreneurs. The network quickly grew by word of mouth and with the help of a rather large list of folks provided by the ringleaders.

“The Ex-TI Network is a great way for people to connect both professionally and socially where there is an immediate bond, respect and work ethic,” Joan said.

Joan was the business readiness director for the Information

Technology (IT) group and has now started her own change management practice. Patti served as an organization development consultant responsible for implementing several strategic changes across the company and is now the business enhancement services director for Winterstone Financial Associates. Joan and Patti are both consulting on one of the most comprehensive urban education reform initiatives in the country.

Francisco, formerly TI Worldwide Marketing Services and Travel manager, is now president of JFE International Consultants, Inc. The company provides counsel globally to major corporations in the advertising and marketing communications industry on all aspects of business relationship management. Francisco is executive vice president of the TI Alumni Association.

Mike and David both ran product groups in High Performance Analog (HPA). Mike now consults with the University of Texas at Dallas (UTD) and David with the Sierra Club. Both now serve on several boards.

Keh-Shew Lu was a TI senior vice president running the old Mixed Signal, Analog & Logic (MSLP) business. Now he is the president and CEO of Diodes Inc., a global semiconductor company. He is moving his headquarters from California to Dallas.

Ari Reubin ran the Charge Coupled Device business reporting into the Application Specific Products (ASP) group. He is now consulting with several Fortune 500 companies around the globe. In parallel, he is on the UTD School of Management faculty as associate director of their business transformation practice.

John Stich, former TI-Asia vice president, is serving on two corporate boards and has been appointed the honorary consul general of Japan at Dallas.

Surku Sinnadurai, former IT operations vice president, is now chief information officer (CIO) of i2 Technologies and managing director for i2 India.

“The network has been helpful to my business in several ways,” Joan said. “I get encouragement as an entrepreneur from other successful entrepreneurs. I receive marketing expertise and contract advice from former TI marketing business managers and procurement leaders. I was able to provide contract work for a former TI communication manager and OD consultant. The network is a great pool of highly skilled professionals that benefits both those seeking resources and those seeking opportunities.”

The Ex-TI Network gathers from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. on the last Tuesday of each month at various locations near the TI Expressway site. Wizard’s Sports Café is the spot for the next couple of months.

Joan maintains the Ex-TI Network directory and sends out e-mail notices giving the meeting locations. Anyone who wants to participate in the Ex-TI Network can contact Joan at 214-543-2546 or j-nichols4@comcast.net.

TIAA President Lewis McMahan presented the check representing the proceeds to Suzy Gekiere, The Senior Source chairman, and Molly Bogan, executive director. In accepting the contribution, Suzy commented on the importance of the TI Alumni support to The Senior Source programs over the past several years. She cited programs that help seniors remain in their homes with assistance from The Senior Source.

Lewis praised the efforts of TI retiree volunteers who helped raise funds for the tournament and who helped with logistics on game day. He also commended the work of Courtney Miller, his wife Dee, and daughter Margaret Eckert for their family support, and Jerry and Ronnie Brandenburg for recruiting and organizing the volunteers.

Courtney then announced the winners of the competition. They were:

First place: Herby Locke, James Augenbaugh, Rex Ferguson Sr. and Rex Ferguson Jr.

Second place: John Gibson, Mark Gibson, Buck Downs and Paul Martin

Third place: Tony Adams, Paul Adams and Rick Proctor

Fourth Place: Lowell Chambers, Leon Zellars, Phil McDermott and Rod Riggins

Prizes were awarded for closest to pin on the four par three holes. The winners were: Rex Ferguson Sr., Patrick Burns, Martin Nuncio, Bill Henderson and Rick Proctor.

Rick Proctor won the award for longest drive on the selected hole.

Courtney thanked the golfers for their contributions and requested their input for next year’s tournament. He recognized the tremendous support by Doris Mott, TIAA administrator, and Stephanie Grossman, The Senior Source, in making the tournament a success.

Also, Courtney recognized the tournament underwriters – Texans Credit Union and Texas Instruments. Their contributions cover the tournament cost so that 100 percent of donations can go directly to The Senior Source.

TIAA would like to thank all those who contributed and helped raise more than $22,000, especially the eight Legend Sponsors: Barbara Barton, American Financial Services; James Aughenbaugh, Raymond James and Associates; Jerry Pierce, CFP, Edward Jones; Robert Frey, CFP, A.G. Edwards; Merrill Lynch; Michael J. Owen, Southwest Securities, Inc.; The Sterling at Turtle Creek; and Joe Marshall, Wachovia Securities & Ohio National Financial Services

For a complete donor list, please visit the TIAA Web site at: www.tialumni.org and click on 2006 Golf Tournament.

Take Me Out to the Ballgame...

Get Immunization to Prevent Pneumonia

Health experts recommend that seniors age 65 or older get pneumococcal vaccine immunization, which will be available at the TI retiree Big Event Oct. 31 at Southfork Ranch.

Preventing pneumonia through vaccination is important because the disease is now more resistant to drugs such as penicillin.

The pneumococcal polysaccharide vaccine (PPV) can protect against 23 types of pneumococcal bacteria. Most healthy adults develop protection within two to three weeks after getting the immunization.

Medicare covers the PPV immunization for all people with Medicare. Most only need this immunization once in their lifetime, but some might need a booster immunization after five years. Talk with your doctor.

Pneumonia vaccination is also advised for people under 65 with lung, heart, liver or kidney problems; those with diabetes, sickle cell disease, alcoholism or HIV/AIDS; and anyone over two years of age who has certain long-term health problems.

Effective Jan. 1, 2007, pneumonia immunization will be covered at 100 percent for Blue Cross Blue Shield PPO participants under the TI Plan. This includes both pre-Medicare and Medicare-eligible participants.
